CANDIDATES FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

As THE TIMES announced yesterday, the candidates so far as known are the following:

Yates Street Ward.—Messrs. John Braden, Chas. Hayward, James Fell and C. E. Redfern.

Johnson Street Ward.—Messrs. Wm. Dalby, C. M. Chambers and D. W. Higgins.

James Bay Ward.—Messrs. R. B. McMicking, Alex. Wilson and D. R. Harris.

The above candidates for the position of school trustees are all well known in this city, five of them having served during the last term, others have either served as school trustees on former boards or have been servants of the city in positions of trust from time to time.

In the selection of candidates to compose the School Board for the coming year, the question of political or religious creeds is a matter of but little importance. The discussion of both subjects should be rigidly excluded from the councils of the board. At the same time it is quite competent, and right, for members of the board to discuss any changes which may have been, or are proposed to be made by the proper authorities, for the better management or government of schools. It is in discussing this phase of the school business that members may have crossed the line. No doubt it is difficult at times to say where the line of demarkation is to be laid down. If a member of the board is of the opinion that certain new innovations are inimical to the best interest of education, he will very likely express himself accordingly; in doing so he must blame some one, and if that one is a gentleman connected with politics, the cry may be raised that the discussion has taken a political turn, when really such an appearance could not have been avoided in dealing with the subject in hand. It will be for the electors of this city to say, on Tuesday next, whom they wish to entrust with the management of school matters. In recording their votes no doubt the electors will take into their serious consideration the services rendered in the past, as well as what the several candidates may be likely to do in the interests of the schools in the future, pure and simple.

From Halifax to Victoria in Seven Days.

The London Times of the 20th May has a lengthy article on Canada and the Canadian Pacific railway. It says that the time, it is calculated, within which troops can be sent by the line now opened throughout for traffic from Halifax to the Pacific coast will not exceed seven days. For Imperial purposes, whether of war or peace, these increased facilities will be most valuable; but the colonists of the Dominion will also profit by the improvement of communications materially as well as politically. When the development of the railway system, of which the new Pacific line is the main artery, has opened up, not only Manitoba and the Northwest but the territories beyond the Rocky mountains, such disturbances as those excited by Riel will soon cease to be possible. Moreover, the vigorous and well-directed political life that has been fostered in the eastern provinces of the Dominion since the spread of the railway system has made confederation a reality will extend across the continent and bring the settlers of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, for the first time, really into union with their fellow-citizens on the Atlantic side. The riches of the country which the main line will open up are not yet thoroughly explored, but that they are very great is certain. On the Pacific side there are vast and undeveloped fisheries, forests and mines, at the base of the Rocky mountains there are immense cattle ranches, in the prairie country there are boundless possibilities of wheat-growing, and in the region bordering on the great lakes—bleak and almost desert as it is—there is much wealth both in minerals and timber. By the Mother Country the growth of a sense of union among her children must always be regarded as a source of strength, and in these days it points, happily, to a larger and wider conception of Imperial unity which will not remain, it may be hoped, an aspiration only. But, whatever may be the future of Imperial federation, as long as the British Empire holds together, it will be a priceless advantage to us to have the command of a great line of communication between the two oceans, spanning the American continent and passing from sea to sea on British soil, beyond the reach of any hostile attack, and free from the restraints of a possibly embarrassing neutrality.

Shad on the Pacific Coast.

The consignment of shad which left Washington last week for the Pacific coast, has reached Portland. The car was delayed in the mountains at the Gallatin bridge for some days. About 40 per cent of the carp died there. The car contained about one million when it left. One hundred thousand were deposited in the Snake river and the balance in the Willamette river at Portland. The time required for a shad to attain a size which epicures enjoy is also a matter of theory, but back east sportsmen and scientists agree that in three years they will grow to weigh five pounds. This is shown by the fact that shad weighing five pounds are taken from streams in which they were planted three years before, and in which shad were not natives and had not been caught before. The car left Portland for Tacoma to-day, where it takes a return cargo of the little neck every day claims to be transplanted in the east, as well as some of the next largest size clams.

Mr. G. B. Smith, of Christie, Brown & Co., Toronto, has taken the first prize of $3000 at the Montreal Windsor Hotel Derby sweepstakes.

Not one of the gambling houses are now open and none of the fraternity could be found in their accustomed haunts. The gamblers affect to believe that the stoppage is only temporary.

NORTHWEST REBELLION

A Godsend in Many Respects—Expenditure of Public Money—The Peace River Indians.

A correspondent writing from Winnipeg says that in some respects the Indian insurrection has been a blessing to the people of Manitoba. There were very many persons who were out of employment, and they found government employ to be a godsend. The large amount of money the dominion government has sent to the front will most likely remain in the Northwest, and the proportion of it which will ever return east will be very small. The city of Winnipeg was in one continual state of excitement from the time of the breaking out of the rebellion until about three weeks ago. Things there have assumed a comparatively settled condition now, however, although there is a painful uncertainty regarding the future of certain Indians. They are now after Big Bear, who has a number of prisoners, and when they secure him a most satisfactory state of affairs will probably exist.

Very many of the farmers were frightened and neglected seeding, but on the whole the acreage will be fully up to last season. Some of the farmers engaged themselves and teams to the government, and they are in this way making really more money than they could possibly make at farming. The crops throughout that entire section of the country are looking fine, and the prospects are most encouraging.

A report that the Peace River Indians had massacred the whites, is not believed by the Hudson Bay employees at Edmonton. The latest advices from Dunvegan were dated six weeks ago, and the Beaver Indians, who occupy this district, were all quiet.

Big Bear's Movements.

FORT PITT, N. W. T., June 6, via Straubenzie, N. W. T., June 7.—General Middleton is moving toward Lorne Lake with about three hundred men, and hopes to strike Big Bear by Tuesday at the latest. The other brigade has orders to scout the Turtle Lake country, and Irvine with the police at Carleton go toward Green lake. The Midlands leave here in the morning for Strange, who is moving toward Cold lake. Big Bear, thus corralled, it is believed, will make a stand at Lorne lake, and if not, will strike for Beaver river, thence to Green lake, with the ultimate intention to join Riel, of whose capture he is ignorant, at Duck lake. The forty Indians wired of yesterday came into camp last evening. They say Big Bear has two hundred fighting men.

Big Bear has 187 lodges or about 500 men, but it is feared will divide his braves into small bands and consequently prolong the campaign, especially if he strikes into the Beaver river country, which is almost impassable for transportation of troops. Pack saddles are being made.

The latest advices from Middleton state that he is on the hot trail after Big Bear. He has 240 mounted men and the Gatling gun, and has taken provisions on packs and travois. The party which accompanied him was sent back to this camp. Gen. Strange goes to Onion lake. Of his force only mounted men under Steele accompany Middleton. Great hopes are now had that Big Bear will be captured.

RESCUED AT LAST.

Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Gowanlock Believed to be Dead Safe at Last.

A Winnipeg dispatch of the 7th says: Dispatches received from Middleton's camp to-night via Fort Pitt, dated June 6, announce that Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Gowanlock, who were with a band of Wood Cree Indians which split from Big Bear's band a week ago, have been rescued through the instrumentality of Rev. Canon McKay, who went north from Fort Pitt a short time ago for the purpose of attempting their rescue. He was supplied with a band of Indian scouts friendly to Middleton, who understood the country thoroughly and who succeeded after much work in spiriting the prisoners away. The women were not missed for some hours, as they were taken at night, and were far enough away before discovery was made. It is also reported that a number of half-breed prisoners have escaped from Big Bear and are now in Middleton's camp. There was great rejoicing in camp when the women were brought in, as they had hitherto been believed to be dead.

Big Bear's Prisoners.

Rev. Mr. Cameron, a prisoner who escaped from Big Bear, made a deposition giving the names of the Frog Lake murderers. He further deposed that the Plain Crees wanted to kill the prisoners, but the Wood Crees interfered and prevented them doing so. He distinctly stated that Mesdames Delaney and Gowanlock, and McLean's family of girls have been well treated, no indignities whatever having been offered them. All the other prisoners were well treated too.

Coal Mining in China.

The Paris Journal des Debats contains the following paragraph: "The Chinese government, abandoning old prejudices, is on the point of working its coal mines in a different way from that hitherto followed, by making use of European miners. It has, in fact, applied to the Belgian Company of Cockerill for the experienced workmen who are necessary to turn to account the mines already pointed out in various places. Thirty miners have accepted the advantageous offers made to them, and thirty more will follow. The Chinese, like the Japanese, learn easily what is taught them. They will know in a short time how to dig up the mineral, and then how to make use of the machinery, and when they have acquired this knowledge, they will try to dispense with the aid of Europeans."

A rumor is in circulation in the east that the president of the Canadian Pacific railway is about to resign. It is also stated that Van Horne will succeed him and Frank Abbott become general manager.

A most determined effort is being put forth by Quebec members to procure clemency in the case of Riel. It is understood that Archbishop Taché is there for that purpose, and will shortly be followed by Bishop Grandin, of Saskatchewan.

Dr. S. Boyd, of London, England, a member of the Grand Cross Corps, has arrived in Ottawa, on business connected with the fund raised by the Princess Louise in aid of the volunteers in the Northwest. About £1500 sterling are now subscribed.

Canada in Antwerp.

The Canadian exhibit at the World's exposition at Antwerp is attracting a large share of attention. The Paris Canadian says that the special exhibit prepared by the C. P. R. company, especially the barn which has been erected on the outside grounds, and called Manitoba, is creating a lively curiosity. Those gazing upon it fancy themselves in the neighborhood of Winnipeg, so complete is the illusion that the Canadian Pacific Railway company brings Vancouver close to Quebec, and close to Antwerp. The two places—the new town and the old citadel—seem to become as one, like Buffalo and Montreal in a recital of the imaginative voyage of Philarete Chasles, who knew the whole world though he had never left his native place. One thing only is wanting at the Manitoba farm, and that is the buffalo—that fine race of creatures; but as there are no more buffalos even in the Northwest, one can hardly expect one in Antwerp. It is thus more and more like Manitoba, a buffalo in the passage and farewell to all local effect. Inside the Exhibition buildings, facing the Canadian court, the Canadian Pacific railway company has an exhibit of all the products of the Northwest which completes the practical information afforded by the farm and convincingly shows that visitors should, without delay, cross the Atlantic and proceed to Canada. Each product, each article, bears conspicuously its net price. You may on the spot make up your cultivation expenses; the cost of living and crops are named on the list, as also the cost of the journey. No deceit, no misleading statements. The colonist before setting out knows what he may be sure to expect there (in Canada). He feels himself already there, and has no wish to return.

Demise of an Eminent Divine.

The Rev. Dr. Lindsay Alexander, D. D. who died in London last December, was the father of J. M. Lindsay Alexander, Esq., chief trader, Hudson Bay Company, at present in charge of the New Caledonia district in this province. The Rev. Doctor was born in Edinburgh in 1808, and completed his studies in the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews.

He became minister of a Congregational Church in Edinburgh in 1835, professor of theology to the Congregationalists of Scotland in 1854, examiner in philosophy at St. Andrews University in 1861, and a member of the Old Testament Revision Company in 1870. Dr. Alexander was a voluminous writer, and his published works include "Congregational Lecture for 1840 on the Connection and Harmony of the Old and New Testament," second edition, 1853; "Anglo-Catholicism not Apostolical," 1843; "Christ and Christianity," 1854; "Life of Dr. Wardlaw," 1856; "Christian Thought and Work," 1862; "St Paul at Athens," 1865; and the articles on "Moral Philosophy," Scripture" and "Theology," in the eighth edition of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica."

Political Meetings

A political meeting was held at Clinton last Tuesday, which was attended by a considerable number of the electors of that section. The district members, Hon. A. E. B. Davie and Mr. Edward Allen, addressed the meeting at considerable length. Mr. Allen animadverted somewhat briefly on the government's policy on matters relating to the district. Mr. Davie's speech was a very guarded one, neither doing much harm or good. Mr. Semlin was likewise present, but the few words he uttered were of a non-committal nature. Mr. Reid, M. P., who was on his way to Cariboo, delivered a brief address, in which he gave an account of his stewardship at Ottawa. He kept clear of provincial politics. The meeting was called for the purpose of allowing Messrs. Davie and Allen an opportunity to put themselves right before their constituents on public matters. Our correspondent says that Mr. Davie completely failed in vindicating either himself or his colleagues from the charges laid against them by Mr. Allen. The affair passed off very quietly.

The Provincial Secretary has been holding meetings throughout the New Westminster district during the past few days. The Hon. gentleman was profuse in his promises to the people of the "banner district of the province." At Maple Ridge he was presented with an address, to which he made a suitable reply.

Will Remain in B. C.

Mr. M. C. Hanington, of Shediac, New Branswick, a brother of Dr. Hanington, of Yale, has been making a visit to the Spallumcheen district, and returned to the city to-day. He is so favorably impressed with that region as an agricultural district that he has decided to resign his position of collector of customs at Shedine and remain in the country. He believes the resources of that portion of the mainland are so superior that it is destined to become an important center of population in the near future. The construction of the railway will do a great deal to opening up the district, and its rapid settlement would then be at once assured. We are glad to welcome as residents such enterprising young men as Mr. Hanington.

The "Thrasher" Case.

The consent of the owners of the "Thrasher," who reside in Maine, has been received to the compromise effected, and the sum of $15,000 was to-day paid over by the defendants. All properties attached have been released, and a full and final settlement has at length been arrived at, after five years of litigation. Flags are flying this afternoon in celebration of the event, and all parties concerned feel rejoiced that the end has been at length reached.

—From our correspondent at Eagle Pass it is learned that quite a little town is springing up at that point. There are about 20 saloons established and plenty of whisky in all of them. Mr. Charles Todd, S. M., is at that place doing his best to put a stop to the liquor traffic, but finds it difficult to cope with.

—On receipt of the news at Port Moody that the contract for the erection of the round house had been signed, champagne flowed freely, and many toasts were offered up to Port Moody during the evening on which the glad tidings came.

—Mr. Laurens, lately of Winnipeg, has commenced the excavation of a site on John street, between Elgin and Douglas streets, Port Moody, on which he purposes the immediate erection of a building, in dimensions 60x33 feet and two stories high. The first story is designed for stores, the second for offices, etc.

—Mr. J. L. Beckwith has assumed the management of the I. X. L. clothing store, instead of Mr. Davies, who has resigned with the intention of entering a new sphere of business life.

The Amelia brought a large number of passengers from Nanaimo, arriving here at 4 o'clock.

Governor Dewdney is now named in the papers as the Canadian partner in the big American grab firm of I. G. Baker & Co. Some might be inclined to call him the "wicked partner," but, inasmuch as all the partners are presumably wicked, this distinction would not be warranted by the facts.

Mr. Stephen and Mr. Van Horne are in Ottawa urging the government to settle C. P. R. matters. The government cannot do anything yet, as they have to settle North Shore railway matters satisfactory to the Quebec members, which is not easy to do.

The suggestion made by Mr. Smithers, President of the Bank of Montreal, at the annual meeting, that Canada should adopt the American system of securing the paper security of the banks by the deposit of government securities, has caused endless discussion in financial circles, and all the leading bank managers here oppose it.

A Winnipeg dispatch of the 6th inst., says: It is understood that Chief Justice Dorion, of the province of Quebec, Chief Justice Cameron, of the province of Ontario, and Chief Justice Wallbridge of Manitoba will comprise the commission to try Riel.

J. C. McLAGAN, Manager.

Qui dit, that LANGEVIN, and not McLELAN, will take over the Interior Department.

MEDALS to commemorate the North-west campaign will be distributed by the government to the volunteers.

AN Ottawa firm has received an order for one thousand tents from the government. They must be completed in ninety days.

BY the time the Franchise bill gets through parliament SIR JOHN MACDONALD will not be able to recognize his own bantling.

ANOTHER million dollars has been asked for to meet the expenses of the Northwest war. The interest on the money already asked for, for this one outbreak, would have provided for the best interests of the Indians in perpetuity.

IT is pleasing to learn that the trade prospect in Winnipeg is much brighter than for months past. It is said there is now a heavy trade in supplies for the coming fall and winter. With an abundant harvest and good prices for grain Manitoba will be again in a prosperous condition.

THE Cologne Gazette affirms that all financial circles in Germany are in favor of bi-metalism, but that the support of the government cannot be counted upon. BISMARCK, replying to a number of petitions from the eastern provinces of Prussia in favor of a bi-metallic standard for the coinage of money, said the question was being studied by competent authorities, and the government would await their report before taking action.

IT seems that the appointment of MR. BERCHER as customs collector for the Puget Sound district does not meet with the approbation of the Democratic war horses and workers of that locality. These gentlemen feel hurt to find themselves given the go-by by a president for whose election they labored so hard, while a mugwump only has to open his mouth to have the juicy plum dropped into it. Apparently, the mugwump is not appreciated in the far Northwest.

THE following from the London Economist, in reference to the completion of the Canadian Pacific railway, is another illustration of the deep interest that is being manifested in England in the great Canadian transcontinental railway: "In a political sense, the completion of the Canadian Pacific is undoubtedly an event of very considerable importance. It will knit together those parts of the Dominion which will thus quicken and strengthen the national life. Such results are not unimportant to the Empire, but there are others of more direct importance. The Canadian Pacific furnishes the shortest route to China and Japan, and possesses the great advantage of being entirely through British territory. Our position in the Pacific is thus strengthened, and the importance of this has been thrown into relief by recent events."

THE Canadian Pacific Railway company recently gave notice to American and Canadian railways that, commencing with the 8th inst., they would not accept emigration rates and nothing but first-class rates on passengers going forward from St. Vincent into Manitoba and the Northwest territories. This is a step that will commend itself to all who feel an interest in Canada's great enterprise and desire to see the scheme a success. The order is not only truly in the interest but likewise beneficial to the whole of Canada, because although it may at first result in the loss of a few settlers, it will, if rigidly enforced, soon divert the tide of Canadian immigration to Canadian ports, whence settlers can proceed to the Northwest by an all Canadian route. The order will doubtless interfere somewhat with Minnesota and Dakota land speculators, but as their interest in Canada has generally been limited to settlers proceeding to our Northwest by American routes, there is no reason why tears should be shed over any interference with their congenial occupation of slandering and caricaturing our climate and our soil.

THE POINT ELLICE BRIDGE—AWARDING TENDERS.

In the Colonist of the 11th inst., appears a letter signed "A Contractor of '62," in which the writer endeavoured to exonerate the provincial government from any blame in connection with the above matter. This apologist justifies the action of the government in awarding the contract, and approves of the system now prevailing for opening tenders. THE TIMES has already given its views on both of these questions. The action of the government in departing from the usual mode that has been so long in vogue here—the adoption of a system long advocated by the party now in power when in the cold shades of opposition—is such as to leave room for much complaint, and a well grounded suspicion of unfair treatment to many of those tendering. It is difficult to comprehend what motive the government had in view in departing from the usual custom of not placing plans and specifications before the public for the proposed work, instead of asking parties wishing to tender to furnish their own plans and specifications, etc. It is well known that there are many competent mechanics in this province who would have gladly tendered for the work, had the practice of providing plans and specifications been adhered to. They very naturally ask why, in this instance, have the government not followed the established rule. In respect to opening tenders in the presence of the tenderers "'62" urges that the lowest tender might be a large sum below the next lowest, and that the party being the lowest might come to the conclusion that he was altogether to low; the same opinion being entertained by his bondsmen, therefor he could refuse to complete the agreement. In reply to this we would say that no one should tender for work or become the bondsman of any other, unless in good faith. Bondsmen who sign an agreement could be made responsible in a given sum, provided the principal refused to complete the contract agreement. So that the objection of "'62" to have tenders opened before the tenderers has no weight in fact.

THE ALASKA BOUNDARY.

"It is well that the Dominion government begins to realize the importance of surveying and determining the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia. There is a strip of country of considerable size to which either Canada or the United States could lay claim with a show of justice. The dividing line has never been surveyed; and the terms of the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia are such that its exact location will in many places be difficult to determine. While the disputed country is generally thought to be scarcely worth quarreling about, the extent of its mineral wealth is unknown. New gold discoveries are liable to be made at any time, and it may suddenly become a very desirable possesion. The complications which would be sure to arise in that case would be extremely difficult of settlement, and each nation would assert its claims to the utmost.

"The plea of the Dominion government that it cannot at this time afford to incur the expense necessary to provide a survey of the line is scarcely worthy of consideration. The expense of fitting out and maintaining a surveying party would not be great, and it would be shared by the United States. Delay in such a case is fraught with danger. The survey could be made now with little difficulty, but if it is not made we are liable at any time to be face to face with an international complication of an extremely ugly nature. A few thousands, or a few millions, expended now may save an infinitely greater amount in the future. The survey should be made at once."

THE TIMES endorses the foregoing remarks of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and suggests a simple system of delimitation of the boundary between British Columbia and the Northwest Territoiy on the one side and Alaska on the other. By the terms of the treaty of 1825, between Great Britain and Russia, the location of the boundary is to be fixed ten marine leagues inland following the sinuosities of the coast. But where the summit of the highest range of mountains is found to be within the ten leagues mentioned, then such summit to be the boundary. By a glance at the map it can at once be seen that a fixed dividing line corresponding with the meanderings of the Alaskan coast would be a most undesirable one for either country. Our recommendation is that when a commission is appointed to perform this most necessary work, that it be understood and agreed upon by both countries that the position of a number of prominent points, say eight or ten, on the coast be fixed, and at a given distance inland from such points establish the points of the boundry; then between such fixed boundry points run straight lines, which would be very much more satisfactory to the British and American people who might be brought in contact through business or otherwise, than would be the extremely serpentine line of demarkation, if established according to the wording of the treaty. Besides the expense of the survey of a boundry, such as is here proposed, would cost very much less, which, in itself, ought to be a material item of consideration. We impress upon the two countries the urgency of having the bounds marked out at as early a day as possible.

THE debates upon the Franchise bill in the Dominion House of Commons at Ottawa have included two of the longest parliamentary sittings on record in the world, and the struggle has continued with a vigor and persistency almost unparalleled in constitutional history.

IT is announced that SIR ALEXANDER CAMPBELL leaves the Senate for the Lieut. Governorship of Ontario. The Toronto city council passed a resolution asking the Dominion government to re-appoint LIEUT.-GOV. ROBINSON for another term.

CANADA AS A BELLIGERENT.

CAPT. EDWARD PALLISER, who some years ago made an extensive tour of the Northwest—then known as the Hudson Bay company's country—has lately been contributing much valuable correspondence to the English press relative to the value and importance of British North America. He likewise urges upon Britain the necessity of a military alliance with Canada and the value of the C. P. R. for strategic purposes. The published works of the gallant captain tended much to make known to the world the vast and extremely valuable area that was embraced in the Hudson Bay company's lease and the necessity of Canada acquiring the right to the same. In one of his letters to the London Morning Post he says: "It is usual when a country expects war with a brave, powerful, and somewhat unscrupulous enemy to seek alliances with other powers, to subsidize them, increase their naval and military establishments, and in fact, put forth every resource to secure not only their good-will, but the greatest fighting power possible. The exertions of England in this direction during the wars of the First Napoleon are too well known to need comment. The question is, what can now be done on these lines? Where is the power prepared to assist England in a life or death struggle with a powerful foe? I fail to see any outside the empire, and what is more, I do not regret it. Have we not Canada, Australia, and India to back us? All they require is for England not to hesitate, but to take action towards them as she would take action towards the Turk, viz., to subsidize them and help them to put forth all their strength. I am not beating the air. My letter, which appeared in the Morning Post of the 7th inst., on the Canadian Militia Act, proved that the Canadians have carefully prepared the ground for England to act, and there should be no shyness or false modesty on the part of the latter. To commence with, England might at once form a Canadian navy out of the 40,000 splendid seamen of Canada. She could also raise six regiments of Canadian guards and rifles. It should be remembered that such a steamer as the "Oregon," now an English cruiser, could run from Plymouth to Quebec in eight days; and that by the great strategic railway troops, guns and stores she carried would be delivered at the Admiralty dockyard in the Pacific in six days more. Let this be compared with the time it now takes to get to our Pacific dock and coaling station. This railway, constructed at such enormous cost to Canada, runs throughout the British territory, and will be completed next August. I believe a great war will beat the British Empire into a compact and most powerful alliance for defence on true military and naval principles. As it is, there is much to be done. I repeat, action is required. Do not let us wait until the storm is at its height to commence what ought to be now in course of active arrangement."

POLITICAL RUMORS.

The political air at Ottawa just now is thick with political rumors. There are two portfolios vacant in the cabinet. It is said SIR LEONARD TILLEY will accept the Lieut.-Governorship of New Brunswick, and SIR ALEXANDER CAMPBELL the same position in Ontario. THOS. WHITE, DALTON MCCARTHY and SPEAKER KIRKPATRICK are mentioned as likely cabinet ministers. The government is in a pretty dilapidated condition at present, but no change is likely to take place before adjournment. It is also announced that very important chances are to be made in the Liberal party and its platform. The presence in Ottawa recently of the premiers of Ontario and Nova Scotia, as well as many other leading Liberals, gives color to the report that the party are hatching a policy which will be made known to the country by MR. BLAKE shortly on the floor of the House. It is hinted that MR. MOWAT is to be transferred to the Commons as leader of the Liberal party, MR. BLAKE being anxious to retire. This is but a rumor, lacking confirmation. Referring to the political situation at Ottawa a well informed correspondent writes: It is indeed very different to foresee the political future of Canada. The Liberal opportunity has really arrived, but that party are not in a position to avail themselves of it, for as yet they cannot induce the people to abandon SIR JOHN for the sake of adopting MR. BLAKE. As a leader he is without tact, and has no policy beyond that of exaggerating the errors and crimes of his opponents.

On both sides of politics that which is most conspicuous is the element of weakness; each is divided up into cliques and factions; and the distinctions of race, language and religion are too strong to admit of unity. If an election took place, and SIR JOHN were beaten, the Liberals would have but a temporary hold of office. What is probable is that there would be a succession of short-lived governments, sometimes Grit, sometimes Tory, sometimes coalition; both parties would become disintegrated, and then, some day, somebody would raise the cry of Commercial Union with the States, and the doom of the Confederation would be signed, sealed and delivered.

CANADIAN PACIFIC railway stock advanced 2½ per cent. in one day last week, caused by the reported amalgamation with the Grand Trunk railway.

CHOLERA is likely to spring up again in Europe this summer and the danger of foreign traveling will be greatly increased. This will give Americans a chance to see America, of which the majority are densely ignorant. In the Canadian Northwest and among the grandeur of the Rockies and throughout British Columbia the scenery is unsurpassed anywhere in the world.

THE BEST

Hair restoritive in the world is HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. It cures all diseases of the scalp, and stimulates the hair glands to healthful action. It stops the falling of the hair; prevents its turning gray; cures baldness, and restores youthful color and freshness of appearance to heads already white with age. The following are a few illustrations of what is done by

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER:

☞ MRS. HUNSBERRY, 344 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of Erysipelas in the head, found her hair—already gray—falling off so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER brought it back as soft, brown and thick as when she was a girl.

☞ MR. EDELINE, an old farmer, near Warsaw, Ind., had scarcely any hair left and what little there was of it had become nearly white. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER stopped its falling out, and gave him a thick, luxurious head of hair, as brown and fresh as he ever had.

☞ MRS. A. T. WALL, Greenfield, Cheshire, Eng., writes: "I have found the greatest benefit from the use of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. It having restored my hair, which was rapidly falling off, and returned its original color."

☞ DR. EMIL SEIP, Detroit, Mich., certifies that "HALL'S HAIR RENEWER is excellent for hair growing, and gives back the natural color to faded and gray hair."

☞ MRS. S. E. ELLIOTT, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER restored my hair to its natural, youthful color."

No injurious substances enter into the composition of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, and it is not a dye. Its vegetable ingredients render it in the highest degree beneficial to the scalp as a preventive of disease. Its effects are natural and lasting, and it does not make the hair dry and brashy, like the so-called restoratives compounded with alcohol.

Buckingham's Dye
FOR THE WHISKERS

Is, in four respects, superior to all others.
1st—It will produce a rich, natural color, brown or black, as desired.
2d—The color so produced is permanent, cannot be washed off, and will not soil anything with which it comes in contact.
3d—It is a single preparation, and more convenient of application than any other hair or whisker dye.
4th—It contains no deleterious ingredients, as do many preparations offered for like use.

BY THE GATE OF THE SEA

A NOVEL.

BY DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY.

CHAPTER XIII.

Phil left the island two days later, and Tregarthen was just as sane and just as insane as he had found him on his arrival.

"You are provided for, Phil," said Tregarthen, as he shook hands at parting. "My will was made long since, and there is nobody but you to whom I care to leave a penny. I do not wish you ill enough to leave you my secret. It's a type of life at large," he added, with a mournful smile. "I have spent the best years of my life in hunting for it, and now I have found it is worthless, and worse than worthless. I do not know if I shall see you again, for to outlive hope is to almost outlive everything, and I have nothing left to care for. If these are the last words you hear of mine you will value them. There is one possession in the world worth coveting, and that is honor, though it is so little valued that men sell it for a mess of pottage. Cherish Virtue, Phil. She will not make you happy. That is a foolish fable. If you wish to be happy, be a fool, and have no care for the morrow; be a hog with the rest, and keep your feet in the trough. But if only one man in the world should turn his back on the world's shameful joys, let that man be yourself. Good-by."

He drew Phil toward him and kissed him on the cheek, and then walked in-doors. Phil went away well-nigh heart-broken, and this was the first great grief of his manhood.

He told Marsh that his intercession had been useless, but he had not the heart to say more about his journey, and he loved Arthur too well to spread the story of the talisman. He came to know more of Mrs. Tregarthen, and to have better ground than he had at first for his good opinion of her. The world is never of one complexion only, even to the most profound natures, and neither Mrs. Tregarthen nor Phil were always shadowed by their respective sorrows. For one thing, Miss Lina, who had grown into a charming and sprightly woman, was on the eve of a brilliant marriage, and was gay from morn till eve. She alone would have kept a more selfish creature than her sister from stagnation, and there were duties, social and professional, which had to be attended to, and served their turn in keeping the wolf from the door.

It befell one day that the youngster, walking in poetic cloudland toward the house of the great actress, was suddenly pulled from his dream by a hand upon his arm, and, turning round, saw the poet.

"You are going to call upon Mrs. Tregarthen?"

"Yes," said Phil.

"We will go together," said Marsh, and they walked side by side for a little time in silence. It was a sunlit afternoon, and there were window-gardens at every house in the street, with bright-colored jalousies gleaming over the flowers, so that a pleasant sense of warmth and color stole to the hearts of the two unobservant creatures as they walked along, and brightened their dreamy fancies. And suddenly, as if she were in some way the product of this unusual fullness of color and radiance, appeared the charming Miss Lina, accompanied by a little girl of twelve or thirteen years old, who looked like an attendant fairy. Phil saw something so surprising in the aspect of the little stranger that he raised his hat mechanically in answer to the young lady's graceful salute, and looked at the child with so curious an interrogation that he plainly alarmed her.

"Has Mrs. Tregarthen a daughter?" he asked of Marsh, a minute later.

"Yes," said the poet. "We have just passed her. A pretty child, is she not?"

"I should have guessed her to be Arthur's child, or at any rate a close relative of his, wherever I had seen her," returned Phil. "There is a portrait of Arthur's mother at Tregarthen, painted when she was a child. I have been familiar with it ever since I can remember. It might have been painted from the child we have just seen."

This news would have been a relief to Marsh years ago, but it had been unheeded now for many and many a day of certainty.

"It is not uncommon that a child should resemble its father," he said tranquilly, "or its father's mother. Is Tregarthen like his mother?"

"Amazingly," said Phil. "His features are masculine, and hers were femine, but beyond that it would puzzle you to find a difference in their pictures. The expression governs all."

The two made their call upon the actress, and there was nothing in the afternoon to distinguish it outwardly from many others so spent before and after. But when they had left the house and were walking home together, the poet made a confession.

"I have been guilty of a theft," he said. "Send that to Tregarthen. If there are any bowels in the man at all it will bring him to reason."

He drew from his breast-pocket a photograph of the child, and Phil, upon his first glance at it, gave a little exclamation.

"With a change of costume," he said, regarding the picture attentively, "and another arrangement of the hair, it might pass as a photograph from the picture." And indeed the likeness was remarkable.

He wrote a letter that night (though he had little hope of piercing the darkness of Arthur's mind), in which he told him how he had that day for the first time learned of the existence of a daughter of Mrs. Tregarthen's, how the surprising likeness of the child to Tregarthen had appealed to him, and how he had been moved again by this new knowledge to write in behalf of a most unhappy and most virtuous lady. He inclosed the photograph; and having done the best work he ever did, awaited a response without much hope. When it came, he experienced a shock.

"My dear Phil," Tregarthen's brief letter ran, "God's hand has so modeled my child's face that I should be a fool as well as a villain to deny her. She at least is mine. It may be that you are right and that I have been mistaken. I shall resolve that doubt before long, for I am dying."

Whether this news were true or fanciful, he could not tell, and he could not set his mind at rest except by an immediate return to Tregarthen, but before he started he must see Marsh and consult him, if only for a moment.

"If he is dying," said Marsh, who could not share Phil's doubt, not guessing at the reason he had for doubting, or even knowing that he doubted, "she should know it, and should let her own heart decide whether she shall see him."

"You have known her longer," said Phil, "and better than I have. You can take the letter to her. If she should decide to go, she may accept my escort."

Marsh accepted the errand, and fulfilled it. In effect, Mrs. Tregarthen decided to see her husband, if he would receive her; and she and her child, in Phil's charge, started upon the journey. It was now thirteen years since she had so foolishly run away from home and happiness, darkening her own life and the life of the man who loved her. But that had never seemed her crime. Her real folly was hidden in the shadow of the more grievous wrong she had always deemed criminal. Perhaps, since she felt it so, and had always felt it so, her sin really lay there, though few people would have agreed to characterise it by so harsh a name. She had reaped fame and riches and a heart full of regrets, and none of the purposes for which she had lived had seemed worth much to her, except in so far as they seemed to avenge Arthur, and then they became valuable.

Phil left her, with her child and her maid, at one of the hotels at Gorbay, and crossed to the Island alone to spy out the land before her. Tregarthen sat where he had sat before, and Phil supposed at first that his downward gaze was still directed at the bit of crystal, but when he drew near he saw the child's photograph in the father's hand. He had knocked at the door, and had received no response, and now he had to lay his hand upon Arthur's shoulder to arouse him from his reverie. He was startled at the hollow eyes and gaunt face which turned toward him.

"You are here again, Phil!" said Tregarthen, in a waste-sounding voice. "I am glad of that. I wanted to see you again, but I did not care to ask you to come."

"I came because of your letter, Arthur," answered Phil. "That is the photograph I sent you?"

"Yes."

"I have brought your little daughter with me," said Phil, tremulously. "Would you like to see her?"

"Yes," said Tregarthen, "I should like to see her. Bring her to me. Where is she?"

"I left her at Gorbay," returned Phil, "Arthur, your wife is with her. She longs to see you. She never knew till lately that you suspected her of worse than that deceit of hers about the stage. If she had fancied that such a construction could be put upon her running away she would have stayed, or have returned again to clear herself of that. Arthur, she's as pure as crystal. I am sure of it. I know it. Shall I bring her here?"

"Tell her," said Tregarthen, huskily—"tell her this before she comes. I have only a day or two to live. Hush, Phil! No disclaimers can alter it. If she can come here, if she cares to come here, and tell me I have wronged her, I will believe her. I shall know all about it by-and-by, but I will believe her. For my share in the fault and folly I have borne enough to be forgiven."

"Arthur," asked Phil, "why do you speak like this? Why do you tell me you are dying? You only need shake off the fancies that oppress you to be well and happy and strong again."

"The doctor comes here," returned Tregarthen, with a ghastly smile, "and prescribes food I can't eat, medicine I can't drink, and occupations which are impossible. I am dying, Phil, and there is an end of it. I am glad to go. This lingering taking leave is painful, but I have been patient too long to grow impatient now. There—go, and do your errand, Phil. Prove me twice a fool, and kill what earthly longing may be left."

To Phil's mind the tragedy was too complete for anything to add to it. The boatman rowed him back to Gorbay, and he found Mrs. Tregarthen pale and trembling with suspense, but self-possessed.

"Tell me," she demanded, "what he said. You told him I was here?"

Hard as it was to do it, he told her all. She took the wandering child by the hand and arose. She had not removed her traveling-dress, and there was no time lost in preparation. Phil led the way silently through the sunlit street, and down to the beach. The waters sparkled softly, and the Island was all amber and amethyst in the sun, for there was little haze abroad, which gave the effect of distance. They landed at the Sea-gate, and she remembered her first coming there, and the last time of her leaving, and the years that had passed since then looked like a very gulf of time. When she stepped upon the sands her limbs almost refused to support her, but Phil lent her an arm, and she walked to the house, trembling. The housekeeper had seen them approach, and half guessed who the veiled lady might be. She stood at the door with a disturbed face, but her expression changed to one of unmixed wonder when she saw the child.

Phil, with Mrs. Tregarthen clinging to his arm, walked down the corridor to Tregarthen's room, and there, having rapped once, he threw open the door and surrendered his charge. The actress and her child entered, and he, having closed the door, went away.

Tregarthen, with his hollow eyes and gaunt face, his jutting beard and neglected hair, was so unlike himself that for a moment his wife scarcely knew him, though they were so near to each other and each was entangled in the other's glance.

"Arthur!" she said, "Arthur!"

She was on her knees at his side. He looked at her with intent inquiry, and at the same time reached out a hand for the child and drew her toward him.

"Clara," he said, after a dreadful pause, "you gave me a right to doubt you. You gave me a right to hate the world, and throw my life away. I am dying, and I know it. There is no one here before whom you need pretend. I shall know everything in an hour or two. It is not worth while to deceive me for so brief a time. Tell me the truth. Why did you leave me?"

"I had deceived you," she answered, still entangled by his glance. "I knew that you could never love nor respect me any more. I could not bear to think it, and I ran away."

"Did I marry an honest woman, Clara?" He had a right to ask the question, and she knew it.

"This little child," she said "is no purer than I was when we married, Arthur."

"You can say that to a dying man, and with your arm about the child?"

"I can say it, Arthur, in God's hearing, and call him to witness that I speak the truth."

He turned away, with a weak gesture of head and hands.

"Shipwrecked," he murmured, "by collision with a bubble! That sounds strange, Clara. And the ship went down as those I had struck upon a solid rock. Is it of any use that the ghosts who wash against each other after all these years should make a pretense of being alive again?"

If this were but a poor reconciliation for two mortal hearts, it was yet all that was allowed them for the time. Tregarthen was so weak that he fell asleep after a few minutes of peace, and his wife watched him with such thoughts and regrets as may be fancied.

He slept till evening, and at dusk the housekeeper dared to enter the room and put a light to the materials for a fire which lay ready in the grate. The child cried at this strange home-coming, and her mother soothed her; and when the room was ruddy with the fire-light Tregarthen awoke.

"Phil," he said softly, without raising his head—"where is Phil?"

"Shall I send for him?" asked Mrs. Tregarthen.

"You are here?" he asked, turning his eyes upon her. "We wasted a day or two of pleasure here. We shall have time enough to know each other better. Where is Phil?"

She moved quietly to the corridor; and there was poor Phil, walking up and down noiselessly, with slippered feet. At her beckoning hand he came.

"He has asked for you," she whispered. "There is a little box in the safe," said Tregarthen, when Phil entered the room and bent above him. "Give it to me."

The key was in the lock, and the safe opened easily. Phil found the box and placed it on Arthur's knee.

"There's something in the box, Phil. Take it out. What is it?"

"A greenish bit of glass, Arthur. Nothing else."

"Throw it in the fire, Phil." The youngster obeyed him. "That was no philosopher's stone," said Tregarthen, struggling up in his chair, and supporting himself with both hands. "I shall find the true one very soon. It stands at the head of every peasant's grave."

REMOVAL!

THE TIMES' Office has been removed to Mr. Langley's building, Yates street, second door from Mr. Frank Campbell's corner, the premises formerly occupied by the British Columbia Express Company, which have been fitted up specially to meet the requirements of the rapid increase in the business of THE TIMES Printing and Publishing Company.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Mr. Duncan and his three Metlakahtla proteges, have arrived at Ottawa.

—The crops in the interior are looking remarkably well.

—Mrs. and Miss Pelley, of New Westminster, are off on a trip to Australia.

—The New Westminster volunteers are attaining perfection by dint of hard work.

—Atkinson's Comedy Co. will present Peck's Bad Boy at Philharmonic Hall on Tuesday evening next.

A new brick building, two stories, will be erected shortly on Government street, between Cormorant and Johnson.

—Sir Matthew does not expect to find a pair of white gloves awaiting him at Farwell.

—The Yosemite will bring sight seers to New Westminster from Victoria, on Dominion Day, at two dollars for the round trip.

—The snag boat Sampson, lying at New Westminster, is to be overhauled under the superintendence of Captain Grant.

—Constable Shennan of Port Moody, has been made the recipient of an albatross coat, which was presented by an official of the "Areola."

—Sir Matthew M. Begbie will hold a court of assize at Farwell and the East crossing of the Columbia river on the 22nd instant.

—Rev. Walter Barss, of Victoria, will preach to the Baptist congregation New Westminster to-morrow, and Rev. Robt. Lennie will preach in Victoria.

—Dr. Jackson will move his drug store to Duck's block, Johnson and Broad, and Cohen & Salmon will occupy the premises vacated.

The Colonist has resurrected some of the dead school issues of the past for electioneering purposes on Monday next. The electors would rather learn of the present and the future.

—We hope, says the Guardian, that every intelligent voter who desires to be rid of the Honest John incubus will take care that every one of that opinion is duly registered.

—The followers and supporters of the present vile government are quickly massing their troops, with the object, no doubt, of stealing a march on the electors. So says the Guardian.

—Letters are detained for postage addressed to: Rev E Robson, Nanaimo; Mrs M Caganaugh, Mount Gomey, Pa; Geo Hill, Oakland, Cal; Jno Hendry, New York.

—Even police court business is feeling the effect of the general trade depression. This morning there were only two plain drunks, which were subjected to the usual infliction.

—The ship Areda, loaded with steel rails, went into Coal Harbor under full sail and anchored off Hastings sawmill. This is the best evidence that can be given that that harbor is easily approached by sailing vessels.

—Mr. J. C. Hughes, of New Westminster, will act as deputy registrar of the supreme court at the session to be held on the 22nd instant, by the chief justice at Farwell and at the East crossing of the Columbia.

—It is confidently predicted that the C. P. R. will be completed from Port Moody to Yan Horne within ten days, and that regular trains will thereafter be able to make 20 miles per hour, or the entire distance, including stoppages, in six hours.

—In the House of Commons on the 2nd inst., Hon. Mr. Pope, replying to Mr. Edgar, said that the plan and profile of the proposed change in the location of the Canadian Pacific near Illecillewaet Creek, British Columbia, had not been laid before the government.

—Mr. A. D. Charlton, general western passenger agent of the N. P. R., has returned from a trip east as far as Chicago. He says that a great deal of interest is taken in this glowing west by the benighted denizens of the east, and any one going from here is sure to be pumped dry by questions. The number of visitors that will come through to this coast this year will be very large.

—The Eliza Anderson left for Seattle at 7 last evening, carrying the base-ball players and a large number of citizens who will be interested spectators of the match to-day. The Amities will do their best to gain the victory, but it should not be forgotten that they have to meet a stronger team than vanquished by them on the 24th. The nine and their positions on the field are the same as at the late match.

—Mr. John R. Hanson, representing the famous Jewell Nursery Co., of Lake City, Minn., is now canvassing this city for orders for the fruit and shade trees as well as the ornamental shrubbery grown by that company. Mr. Hanson comes highly recommended from the east. The quality of the trees and shrubbery sold by him can be relied on. It is to be hoped that Mr. Hanson will receive liberal encouragement throughout the province.

—The Olympian brought freight for: A Mayer & Co, Hastings Sawmill Co, T Earle, Neufelder & Ross, W Grimm, A Cowan, Ben Williams, Burns & Co, Pinchbeck & T, Turner Beeton & Co, C Strauss & Co, W P Sayward, W Charles, J A T Caton, Hutchinson Y & Co, M Manson, Marvin & T, M R & Tye, O H Maynard, J Weiler, J Abrams & Co, A Bossi & Co, H Saunders, A Ofner, John Parker, McQuade & Son, Langley & Co, Hirst Bros.

According to the last programme of the movements of the Iowa press association, upon their arrival on this coast it appears that the light of the intellectual countenances of the party will not beam upon the citizens of Victoria. After doing Seattle they will return east by the shortest route. We regret that the arrangements do not include a visit to our inland city, as we would have had pleasure in welcoming so much wisdom and nobility as is embraced in the party of quill drivers from the progressive state of Iowa.

Record of the Victoria Club for the Past Year.

As during the present year there was a very marked advance in the progress amongst us of England's national game, the following brief account of Victoria cricketing in 1884, will doubtless prove of interest to many, which so singularly combines the elements of science and fortune. In all, nineteen games were played, an increase over the record of late years well worthy of note. Of seven regular matches, two only were lost, both at Portland. Victory was achieved once against Portland; twice against H. M. S. Swiftsure, and twice against H. M. S. Constance. In one of the last named contests Esquimalt played with the Constance. In afternoon home matches the members of the Union Club were three times successful against the rest, and those of the Cathedral Institute scored one win and one defeat, the latter also winning a game with H. M. S. Constance. Malting (introduced by the hon. secretary) proved of great service at Beacon Hill and good cricket was shown in nearly all of the home matches. The change, however, to a fast and uncertain wicket, in the matches at Portland proved disastrous to the batsmen, not one was able to display his true form against the excellent bowling there encountered. As during the season no less than 67 players took part in the various matches, the batting averages given below are confined to those who obtained at least 40 runs, and the analysis of bowling extends no further than those who bowled 100 balls. In four innings when the analysis was not kept, Brealy obtained 12 wickets, Campbell, 10; Pooley, 6; Boville, 6; Helmcken, 2; and Coombe, 1.

MARINE NOTES.

The H. B. Co's bark Lady Head sailed from Esquimalt this morning for London, England, with general cargo.

The gospel schooner, Glad Tidings left for Fort Simpson this morning.

The Eliza Anderson left Johnson street wharf last evening at 7 o'clock, having on board our base ball club. She arrived at Seattle this morning at six and will return to-morrow morning.

The Olympian arrived at the outer wharf at half-past nine, and remained there until the tide raised the water in the harbor sufficiently to permit her to come in without difficulty.

The ship Newmen Hall, 1526 tons, Capt. Slater, 23 days from Wilmington, arrived at Hastings at 12:30 yesterday. She went under sail from Victoria and made the quickest passage on record, 11 hours and 40 min. from Victoria to English Bay. She was in charge of Pilot Christensen, and will load with lumber for Melbourne.

The Tacoma Defaulter.

Mr. C. B. Willey, the Tacoma defaulter, took his departure for Kansas City a few days ago. He says he will take a place in the bank there. His Tacoma bondsmen were willing that he should go east, and he promised them that he would return again. They probably understand that it will be easier to get him when wanted than if he were in Victoria.

Naval Contracts.

Mr. Samuel Gray's tender for building a two-story brick residence on site of dwelling now occupied by Mr. Innes, naval storekeeper, at Esquimalt, has been accepted. Mr. Gray's tender for torpedo cable tanks and repairs, Mr. Lethco's for painting buildings and Smith & Clark's for building coal stores and jetty, were also accepted. Total amount of contracts will aggregate to $50,000.

For the best variety of pictures and picture frames, go to J. Sommer's, 209 Government street.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[While the columns of THE TIMES are open for the discussion of questions of public interest, to correspondents, it must be understood that it does not necessarily endorse, nor coincide with, the sentiments expressed by writers in this column.]

Mr. Jessop and Mr. Halpenny as Immigration Agents.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—I arrived in Victoria the latter part of last month, and being desirous of permanently settling on the Island, immediately made my way to the Government Immigration office. I was informed by a certain local authority that Mr. Jessop would willingly afford reliable information, necessary to enable a man to obtain a homestead of 160 acres. Mr. Jessop most courteously received me, and subsequently introduced your humble servant to Mr. Halpenny, government guide for Alberni district. Would you allow me to submit that Mr. Halpenny's estimate for the expenses of the journey for the future be more accurately given. I would also respectfully suggest that if Mr. Halpenny's bed and breakfast is to be supplied by the emigrant on board the Nanaimo boat that Mr. Jessop, as Immigration agent, should most emphatically say so, thus enabling intending settlers to repudiate any additional liabilities. Prior to starting for Alberni Mr. Halpenny informed me that $7.50 would very agreeably represent the entire expenses of our visit to Alberni and the return passage to Victoria. Instead, however, of $7.50 an additional expenditure of $11.00 scarcely enabled me to reach Victoria in a normal condition. By kindly drawing attention to the above feats you will greatly oblige JOHN BULL.

Point Ellice Bridge.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

A "contractor of '62" is out in a long winded article in the Colonist to deceive the public. The government has been asked to explain how it came about that they stopped the usual practice of preparing plans, etc., for the above work and have them submitted to the public for fair competition. The government not having done this is charged with unfairness and having favored one contractor over all others, and that one not a resident, or likely to become one. "A contractor of '62" has given no reason for this crooked work, but avoids the real points at issue, and plunges into the mode of manipulation and pooling contracts, of which he knows next to nothing. He fails to point out that if the parties tendering were present at the opening of the tenders and the lowest called to sign at once, where would the pooling business get in, which he so ably pointed out? This mode would be the act of an honest government and none could challenge it. Many plans are found not to work when the coin is not in sight. "Sixty-two," trying to make a point with the new comers, is very shallow to say the least, and the government will find that the new settlers will be an important element in our future politics, and a very radical change will be the result.

A CONTRACTOR.

Berlin Ladies' Orchestra.

The concert in Philharmonic Hall last evening by the Berlin Ladies' Orchestra was undoubtedly the best and most artistic musical performance given in Victoria for a long time. The company consists of eight performers, five being ladies, who play upon the harp, first and second violins, trombone and bass violin, with a freedom, ease and proficiency unsurpassed by professionals of the other sex. Mrs. Kate Berliner, the leader, is an exquisite violinist, and seems to be perfectly at home in the more difficult music of which numerous selections were given during the evening. "Morning, Noon, and Night in Vienna," "Il Trovatore," and "Romantique" were executed by the company in a faultless manner and were received with rapturous applause. Among the specialties introduced, the "Tumbleronicon solo" by Mrs. Berliner, was highly appreciated. Miss Minnie Liebholdt's "trombone solo" brought down the house, and the lady graciously acceded to an encore. Miss Gicela Liebholdt, a very young violinist, played two solos, introducing the grand inspiriting air of "Nearer my God to Thee," and was accorded an ovation of applause. The harp solo of Miss J. Roberts was perfect and "The Harp that once through Tara's Hall" again shed the "sont of music" on a delighted audience. The performance throughout was of a highly artistic character. To the lover of instrumental music of a superior order of merit, no better opportunity will present itself in Victoria for many years. The audience was, we regret to say, a small one, but this was due to insufficiency of advertising. To-night there should be a large audience, and we hope that that portion of the community which is recognized as the special patron of music, in its higher and most perfect branches, will see to it that Victoria sustains her reputation in liberally supporting the second appearance of the Ladies' Orchestra.

Mail Service for Alberni.

In view of the number of settlers now residing, and constantly increasing, at Alberni and vicinity, on the west coast of this Island, and in consideration of a considerable sum, which naturally will be contributed by those settlers, to the revenue derived from this province, by way of import duties to the Dominion coffers, it is only just and fair that a subsidy should be provided by the Postmaster General, to enable the settlers in question to obtain a mail. In these days of enlightenment and progress, the lack of a mail service is very severly felt by people, who, no doubt up to the time of locating, at Alberni have been favored with mail facilities. The fact is that mail communication now-a-days is part of our education. THE TIMES hopes that the provincial government will exercise its best influence to have the desired mail service established. A word of recommendation from Post-office Inspector Fletcher would accomplish a great deal in the matter.

The Base Ball Match.

The base ball players arrived safely at Seattle and the game started at 3 o'clock. The grounds are several miles out of the city and without telephonic communication, so that it is not likely any news about the result will reach here before 6 or 7 to-night. Betting was reported about even, and there is likely to be a considerable sum change hands on the result. The Seattle club has added a new pitcher and a new catcher to their team, and will leave no stone unturned to win. Our boys will win if they can do so on the square, but in no other way.

VANCOUVER.

COAL HARBOR.

Messrs. F. U. Innes & Co. having opened an office at Granville, on Coal Harbor, intending investors can now avail themselves of the opportunity offered by examining and purchasing directly upon the ground. The advantage of doing so is obvious, therefore, before investing your money you should see Coal Harbor and call upon Messrs. F. C. Innes & Co. at the same time.

Go to the Oriental for the celebrated Ice Cream, Cremo de Cacoa a la Vanille.

The Idaho Postmaster.

Isaac Hibbs, the defaulting postmaster of Lewiston, I. T., was in Victoria a few days ago. It is not believed he took the $20,000 as stated, because he did not have money order blanks enough to enable him to get that amount. He got very little of the money he had planned to get. Thus far thirty money orders have been heard from, and of these, 12 were intercepted at Pierce City. Hibbs wrote to his friends and to various banks that his mail should be sent to Victoria, B. C., to the fictitious name of Wilson. The postmaster at Pierce city was ordered by the postmaster-general not to forward the mail as directed, and the postmaster at Victoria was also instructed to withhold all mail for Hibbs or Wilson. The exact whereabouts of Hibbs is not known at present, but he is believed to be between this city and Farwell. He is being spotted by the police.
